

Navigating the Congressionally Directed Medical Research Program

Positioning Yourself and Your Research for Funding Success

Webinar Series Details

Webinar Dates & Times:

November 6, 2025
November 13, 2025
November 20, 2025

All webinars will be held from 12-1pm ET

McAllister & Quinn Presenters:

Francois Botha, PhD
BreeAnn Brandhagen, PhD
Kelsey Hassevoort, PhD
Research Universities Practice

Questions?

Please contact Seema Freer,
sfreer@temple.edu

Learn More and Register

Webinar Series Overview:

Whether you're new to the Congressionally Directed Medical Research Program (CDMRP) or looking to sharpen your approach, this webinar series is designed to support biomedical and health sciences researchers at all levels in pursuing funding through this program. Join us for a practical and informative series that explores the CDMRP funding landscape, offers strategies for crafting competitive proposals, and provides insight into the CDMRP review process.

Session One (Nov. 6)

CDMRP Overview and Basics

This session will provide an overview of CDMRP priority topics and funding mechanisms. Attendees will learn how to identify the best “home” for their research within the CDMRP landscape.

Session Two (Nov. 13)

Crafting a Competitive CDMRP Proposal

This session will focus on best practices for developing the key components of a CDMRP proposal. Attendees will learn how to tailor their proposal to align with program priorities and review criteria.

Session Three (Nov. 20)

Understanding the CDMRP Review Process

This session will walk through the CDMRP two-tiered review process and highlight the important roles scientific and programmatic reviewers play. Attendees will learn how to appeal to both types of reviewers.